HITLER PRESSES ANTI-COMMUNIST CAMPAIGN TODAY

Issues Edict Prohibiting Communist Open-Air Demonstrations

CAUSES CONSTERNATION

Detectives Make Thorough Search of Berlin Headquarters

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—(INS)—Chancellor Adolf Hitler pressed his anti-Communist campaign today with issuance of an edict prohibiting Communist open-air demonstrations throughout Prussia.

The decree, signed by Captain Wilhelm Hermann Goering, Nazi leader, minister of air and minister of the interior for Prussia in Hitler's cabinet, caused consternation in the ranks of Prussian Communists, bitter enemies of the new Nazi regime.

Determined to put down Communism in the Reich, the government launched a raid on the Communist headquarters in Berlin.

With scores of trucks forming a cordon around the building, police officers made the radical stronghold while detectives made a thorough search for arms and documents.

BERLIN, Feb. 2.—The appeal of Chancellor Adolf Hitler for a parliamentary majority in elections of March 5th, today found this country seething with animosity politically.

Press associations were informed from reliable sources that orders have been issued to Prussian police to prevent communist demonstrations during the election campaign in that state.

National Communist newspaper Rote Fahne said the ban was invoked to curb election campaigning. The Communists held one-sixth of the seats in the Reichstag which was dissolved yesterday before it had even met because the majority opposed Hitler's combined Nationalist-National Socialist cabinet.

The Nazi leader was supremely confident of victory after his cabinet, in which Nationalists far outnumber his party colleagues, persuaded President von Hindenburg to permit the new elections.

The Chancellor's nation-wide appeal last night for a "four-year chance," in which he attacked the Republican parties, met with a stormy response. The Social Democratic organ Vorwaerts scathingly criticized the speech, declaring his "four year plan" is a new catch-word borrowed from Stalin. It concluded, addressing Hitler, with the demand: "Out with you."

Other newspapers were silent on Hitler's reiteration of his often proclaimed remedies for the country. The Nationalist papers welcomed the election, on the ground that it was the first time a clear line has been drawn between the Rightist parties and the "Bolsheviks."

"Trouble in Paradise" Is New Technique for Films

Ernst Lubitsch's "Trouble in Paradise," which is said to establish an entirely new technique for motion pictures, has been booked for the Grand Theatre, where it will open tonight for a two-night run.

Miriam Hopkins, Kay Francis, Herbert Marshall, Charles Ruggles and Edward Everett Horton play leading roles in the picture, a witty farce adapted from the play by Laszlo Adalar, Viennese playwright.

With easy good humor, the picture first shows the establishment of business, social and emotional rapport between Miss Hopkins and Marshall, two super-crooks who prey in suave fashion upon European society. Then it follows them through their most exciting adventure—the bamboozling of Miss Francis, svelte Fresh-woman who possesses more money than the Bank of France.

It is in this adventure that Marshall is almost tempted to turn into respectability, for his victim displays charms to which he is easily susceptible.

The struggle between Miss Hopkins and Miss Francis for his affection leads to a highly amusing climax.

Choose Prison Term; Son, Father Walk To Jail

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—Rather than pay a fine and costs for violating the automobile laws, a Bedminster township hotel owner and his son walked down to the County Prison, unaccompanied by any officer, and started to serve the alternate sentence of their choice, "ten days in jail."

Joseph Schwartz, 55, and his son, John Schwartz, 18, are the two who were arrested by Sergeant A. A. Discavage, of the Doylestown sub-station of State Highway Patrol, on Warrington hill. Tuesday they were arraigned before Justice of the Peace W. Carlile Hobensack for hearings.

The elder Schwartz was charged with allowing his son to operate his automobile without a driver's license or learner's permit, and with allowing his own operator's card to be used by another. Justice Hobensack fined Schwartz $25 and costs on the first charge and discharged him on the latter charge. The alternate sentence is 10 days in prison, which Schwartz decided was his choice.

John Schwartz, 18, who, Sergeant Discavage testified, had made several misstatements concerning the ownership of the license to the car, pleaded guilty to operating an automobile without an operator's license and with presenting a license card of another as his own. The fine on the first charge is $10 or five days in prison, and on the latter charge the fine is $50 or ten days in prison.

Justice Hobensack imposed both fines and when the defendant decided to serve the prison sentence he directed that the prison sentences of five and ten days run concurrently.

Question As To Whether Groundhog Sees Shadow

The weather man stated early today he believed there was little likelihood of Mr. Groundhog seeing his shadow. But as the morning progressed the sun came out by degrees, so the weather man might be wrong "for once."

It has been a matter of controversy for centuries as to whether Brer Groundhog really does emerge from his home on this, Candlemas Day.

If the Groundhog sees his shadow it will mean that six weeks of winter are still due, and then he and his family will return to their cozy hole for a lengthy stay.

It was stated today that at Quarryville, Lancaster County, members of the Slumbering Groundhog Lodge gathered outside the hole where the rodent has been sleeping since last fall, and kept watchful vigil for his shadow.

THREE BOROUGHES HAD NO APPLICANTS IN JANUARY

Marriage License Business During Month Showed Marked Decrease

23% BUCKS COUNTIANS

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—Three Bucks county boroughs were without marriage license applicants during the month of January, according to the docket in the office of the Clerk of Orphans' Court of Bucks county. Sellersville, New Hope and Newtown are the three places that Dan Cupid failed to make an appearance.

Business for the month of January also showed a marked decrease over January of last year, the total for the month that closed yesterday being 101 licenses issued, or 31 less than a year ago.

Marriage license records also show that only 23 per cent of the applicants were residents of Bucks county. Trenton furnished 55 applicants and Philadelphia had 47. In Bucks county, Bristol led the list with 11 applicants, while Morrisville was second with four.

Eight of the male applicants and five female applicants were divorcees. Several of the couples who obtained marriage licenses early in the month, failed to use them for some reason or other.

Only three male applicants were under twenty-one years of age, while fifty-seven others were between the ages of twenty-one and twenty-five. Only one applicant was over sixty but thirty-one were over thirty. In eight cases divorced men took divorced women as their partners in the new contracts. Thirteen men and women had been married before.

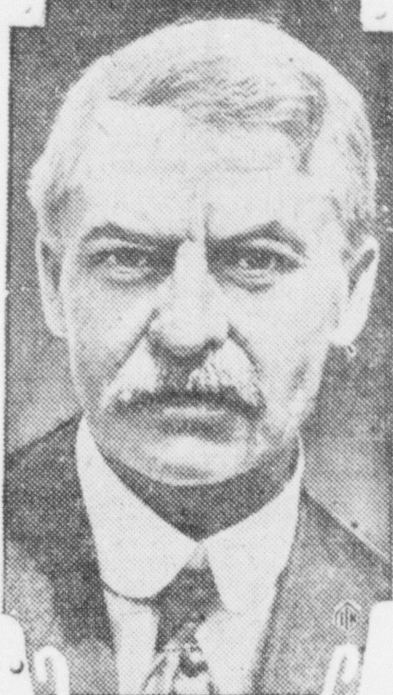

Marriage licenses returns recorded up until yesterday show that thirty weddings were performed in Doylestown, although forty applications have not been double-checked by a return certificate as yet, the marrying parson, Justice of the Peace or Burgess having thirty days in which to make his proper return of a marriage.

The ages of the applicants who received licenses in January were grouped as follows:

| | Men | Women |
|----------------|-----|-------|
| Under 21 years | 3 | 15 |
| 21 to 25 years | 57 | 41 |
| 25 to 30 years | 25 | 10 |
| 30 to 40 years | 10 | 9 |
| 40 to 50 years | 3 | 5 |
| 50 to 60 years | 2 | 1 |
| Over 60 years | 1 | |

Cabinet Possibility

Senator Thomas J. Walsh, of Montana, whose appointment as Attorney General in the cabinet of President-elect Roosevelt, is virtually certain according to political forecasters. Senator Walsh was the victor in the bitter fight at the Democratic Convention for the permanent chairmanship. He was in the national spotlight as the chief prober in the celebrated Teapot Dome oil scandals.

CORPORAL HAS PLAN TO THWART BANK ROBBERIES

Can Be Prevented by Closer Co-operation of Banks and Police Officers

GIVES HIS VIEWS

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—Daylight bank robberies in Bucks county, or anywhere else, for that matter, can be prevented by a closer co-operation of the banks with the police, Corporal W. P. Snyder, in command of the Doylestown sub-station of State Police declared.

There have been four bank robberies in Bucks county in two years and State Police are of the opinion that daylight robberies can be cut down to a minimum just the same as bank robberies at night have been, if a study could be made of crime prevention by banks and those who are employed in banks.

Corporal Snyder is of the opinion that a course in crime prevention should have a definite place in the training of every police outfit that operates.

"It is all well to have the interior of your bank guarded by an armed guard, but some time there will be a fatal shooting if the bad type of gunman is included among the bank robbers," he said. "A better co-operation of banks will result in the ultimate saving of life, and certainly the bank employees are the ones who should be protected. The employees take care of our money so why not give them 100 per cent protection?"

Corporal Snyder suggested that one way of preventing daylight bank robberies would be the installation of practically bandit-proof equipment in the way of bank fixtures, the building up of cage partitions to the bank ceiling to a height that would make scaling of the cage partitions impossible. He also suggested the installation of bullet-proof glass in all banks as another means of protection, with small openings in the windows just large enough to talk through and to be able to satisfactorily transact business.

"Armed protection of banks from within is O. K. when the bandits know that the bank is so protected, but I believe the crime prevention theory is the only solution of eliminating daylight robberies. Banks are not robbed at night any more, simply because the bandits cannot gain an entrance, and the banks can be made just as bandit-proof in the daytime."

Corporal Snyder said that he would like to see the Bucks County Bankers' Association take up this suggestion and make a study of the suggestion. Money in the banks is insured, of course, he pointed out, but the lives of the employees are always at stake in an unprotected bank.

"If the suggestion is really taken seriously by the banks, I am sure they will have a still closer co-operation of all the police departments," Corporal Snyder declared.

"Beer" Truck Captured On Highway at Langhorne

LANGHORNE, Feb. 2.—Caught driving a truck containing 20 kegs of alleged beer, police say, Joseph O'Hara, 22, 58th street, near Thompson, Philadelphia, was arrested on the Lincoln Highway near here about 6 a. m. today.

Corporal John Wollmer, of the Morrisville substation of the State police, said the beverage was being shipped to a Philadelphia beer baron by Dutch Schultz, New York gangster, who is having a legal bout with Uncle Sam over alleged failure to file income tax returns.

Wollmer said several "oases" the Philadelphia man has been operating in Bucks county have been closed in recent weeks on account of the close watch police have been keeping on his trucks.

TRY TO TRACE LETTER

Philadelphia, Feb. 2.—Postal authorities today were endeavoring to trace an anonymous letter mailed by mysterious informants, which, for the sum of $30,000 promised to reveal the identity of the terrorists who bombed the home of John DiSilvestro. Although investigating authorities were disinclined to discuss the letter, receipt of the communication was disclosed by detectives and confirmed last night by the Italian-American leader whose wife, Mrs. Elizabeth DiSilvestro, was killed in the explosion.

"Raise to $30,000 the $15,000 reward for information concerning the bombers and we will do the rest," the letter was quoted as stating.

WILKES-BARRE MAYOR DIES

Wilkes-Barre, Feb. 2.—Mayor Daniel L. Hart, of Wilkes-Barre, died today at Mercy Hospital where he had undergone two operations and seven transfusions in two months to correct an abdominal condition that had been undermining his health. He was 66 and was serving his fourth term as chief magistrate. Joseph G. Schuler, commissioner of finance and vice-chairman of the council, became acting mayor.

CHILD AND AGED MAN DIE HERE YESTERDAY

Wilda Miles Succumbs to Convulsions Before Reaching Hospital

LUCA IZZO DIES

Wilda Miles, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Miles, 526 Adams street, died yesterday after suffering convulsions. The child was rushed to the Harriman Hospital but was dead when admitted to the institution.

The funeral will be held on Friday afternoon, February 4th, at 3 o'clock, to which relatives and friends are invited.

Burial will be in Bristol Cemetery.

Death today claimed an old resident of Bristol in the person of Luca Izzo, husband of Victoria Izzo, at his late residence, 341 Lafayette, following a lengthy illness.

The deceased is survived by his wife, one daughter, Mrs. Josephine Castor, of Bristol, and a sister residing in New York.

Funeral arrangements have not as yet been completed.

An Unscheduled Contest

(By "The Stroller")

The residents of Wood street, between Mill and Mulberry, were treated to an unusual sight the other day when they witnessed two well known Bristol business men dash madly up Wood street, touch the telegraph pole at the corner of Mulberry street, and start right back again.

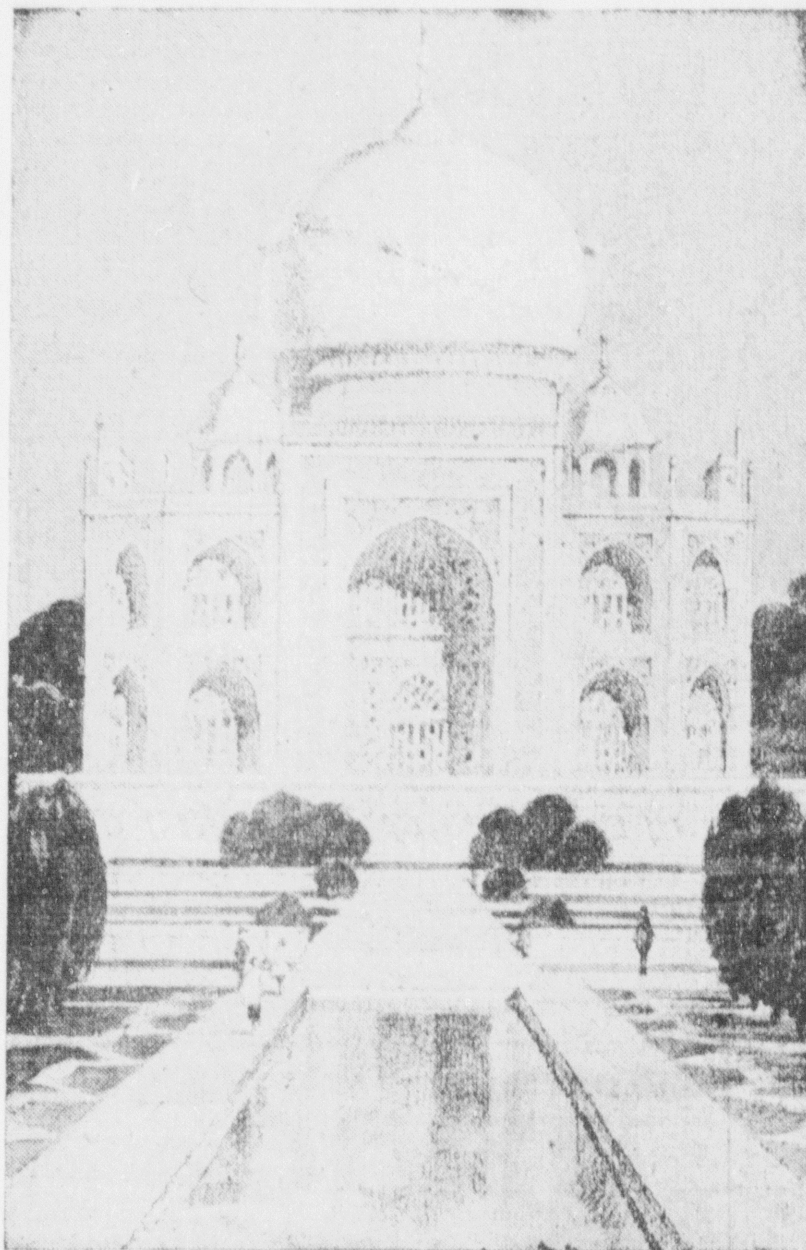

It seems that William B. Nichols, the popular photographer, had been telling of his ability as a runner to some friends in his studio when William DeVoe, the insurance man, questioned him about his speed.

One word brought on another and the outcome was that they challenged one another to a footrace right then and there, the distance of the race to be from the studio to Wood street school and back.

Well, the race was close on the way to the school but on the home stretch DeVoe leaped away ahead of the doughty photographer, who claimed that he had just eaten a heavy lunch and was in no shape to continue, walking the rest of the distance.

It was several hours before either contestant had regained sufficient breath to tell the tale and the residents are still wondering (?).

FARMERS' MARKET PROBLEMS GIVEN WIDE DISCUSSIONS

Two Nationally Prominent Authorities Speak To Group of 200

AT FARM SCHOOL

Workings of Grange League Federation Are Explained; Also "Co-operatives"

DOYLESTOWN, Feb. 2.—Practical problems involved in co-operative marketing and buying by farmers, were discussed yesterday by two nationally prominent authorities at a meeting of 200 farmers from various sections of Bucks county in Louchheim Auditorium at National Farm School. Farmers present represented various farmers' clubs, Granges and co-operatives.

The speakers included H. E. Babcock, president of the Grange League Federation and assistant publisher of the "American Agriculturist," New York, and John J. Dillon, veteran editor of the "Rural New Yorker," Ithaca, N. Y. Following the afternoon session there was an interesting forum conducted by the two speakers and the chairman of the day, Raymond Taylor, of Newtown. The meeting was arranged by County Farm Agent William F. Greenawald and a committee.

Agencies that service agriculture were discussed at the morning session by Mr. Babcock who explained in detail the workings of the Grange League Federation which operates in New York State, doing millions of dollars worth of business annually.

He called attention that farmers are working on a price level that is less than one-half that of pre-war times.

"The best way to improve conditions is to organize well-run co-operatives," he declared. "A poorly run cooperative simply puts up the umbrella to protect the other fellow."

Mr. Babcock illustrated his talk with an interesting map of a New York community, typical of any American town, and showed how co-operatives really help.

"It is safe to say that we are going to have a new low price level and we have to get more of the consumer's dollar back on the farm," he declared. Mr. Dillon, who has been outstanding in American journalism so far as agriculture is concerned for over forty years, said in his opening remarks: "There is nothing new about co-operation as I see it; it is an old custom."

"In the old days," he said, "the price of farm products was based on the time it took to raise and prepare the product, and his rate of value was about the same as other tradesmen. Later, we developed and broadened out along industrial lines and the building up of large centers of population, lost the local markets for the farmers. Then it was up to the farmer to seek new markets in the large centers."

"Then we sent our produce to the commission man and this worked well for a time until the commission man took a little more out of his bill and the commission man became the middle-man, the system we have today."

The Ithaca editor stated that he conducted a survey to ascertain what proportion of the producer's dollar returned to them, and that he found that the farmer was getting 35 cents out of the dollar. This finding, he pointed out, was disputed widely when it first appeared in his magazine; that people declaring that it was not scientific.

"Today, it has been well proven that my survey was correct and at the present time the proportion of return is smaller than in any time in my sixty years on the farm," he continued.

"Then came the cooperative movement, we talked cooperation and began to think how we could get a larger proportion of the consumer's dollar."

"Co-operatives were started also for the purpose of farmers being able to fix the prices of their own products, but this system was suited only to special locations and special crops."

"The middle-man system of marketing is pretty well controlled by the railroads and it is quite difficult for the individual farmer to buck that power and system, for if you get in trouble with but one of the small units of such organization, you are in wrong with all of them."

"When local co-operatives are run systematically and economically, your marketing problem is solved. Keep in close touch with the business of your own particular locale and have a voice in the governing body, or at least a keen interest. Take suggestions at all times, if they are valuable. I never, in my own business as a publisher, fail to accept the suggestion of the most humble employees in my plant, if I can improve the system."

"Do not get a promoter to come into your district and organize a cooperative. You can do it yourself, with your own group. Any successful farmer in this country has enough intelligence to form and operate a cooperative successfully."

At the afternoon session, Mr. Dillon led a discussion on the present monetary situation.

the price level back to what it was in 1926 at $1.00 instead of 44 cents today, and from that $1.00 point, readjust and keep it at the most satisfactory

"One suggestion has been made that when the price level goes down it would be well to take a little gold out which I find no fault, is to issue paper money just as we do now and have each piece marked, 'Redeemable In paper would then be redeemed at the ment of the paper for payment.

"But all these suggestions would not remedy what we are striving for dumb that we cannot adjust this economic condition ourselves. What do we do in science? We simply experiment until we have proven a certain fact, let us do the same thing and as farmers, work out our own problems.

"I certainly believe there are enough brains in the United States to work out a scientific unit of exchange."

Continuing his discussion on cooperatives at the afternoon session,
Mr. Babcock made the statement that in his opinion cooperatives are for the better or more able class of farmers.
He declared that he did not believe in a union of all farmers because in that case, an individual who might want to increase his efficiency, might fall below his ability as a result of association with the entire mass.

Mr. Babcock's associate on the program, the Ithaca editor, declared that he entirely disagreed with Mr. Babcock in so far as his contention was that cooperatives are for the better class of farmers. "That is not the case," Mr. Dillon declared. I hope the time will never come anywhere, when only the better class or more able class of farmers go into a cooperative.
They should include the poor and the good farmer alike.

"Cooperatives are fine in some instances, but in a lot of instances the cooperative defeats its own purpose.
I do not believe it is possible to establish a cooperative and capture the market on one or two products, for you will soon find your problem unsolved. There will soon be another group underselling you and you will have to meet competition if you try to 'capture' the market."

George Olds, president of the Emergency Exchange Association, New York City, attended yesterday's meeting, in an effort, he explained, to ascertain the feeling of the farmers in Bucks county toward furnishing food for the unemployed of the large cities, or any other section.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning 'Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels.
Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul.
Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing
when it comes to making the bile flow freely.
But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

THE ETERNAL QUEST

When men and women pass their eightieth milestone, and especially when they become nonagenarians or centenarians, they are invariably interviewed by the local press on their secret of longevity of life. It is a custom which reveals man's desire to live long and his unceasing search for the spring of eternal youth.

Florida was discovered by a Spaniard while in search of the waters which he was told would restore his lost youth and guarantee to him everlasting life. All medical science has for its purpose the lengthening of human life.

Since the beginning of recorded time man has sought the secret of eternal life on earth. None has found that secret but many have prescribed rules to be followed by those who wish "to live to be a hundred."

Nietzsche's recipe for a full and happy old age was to "live dangerously; build your house on the side of a volcano."

Another advises those who have passed the brow of the hill that "youthfulness consists in backward looking; senility in backward looking."

A third philosopher, on life has said the "work cure" for premature death.

In each theory there is much of wisdom. To live long man must live actively. A man is as old as he makes himself. Those who refuse to grow old never lose the child heart of Menicus. Those who do not keep their minds and bodies at work can not hope to attain a ripe old age. Without work there can be no ambition, without ambition life grows heavy on one's hands, without the desire to live long the spark of life can not linger long.

RAILROAD PROBLEMS

When Congress a year ago established the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and provided it with billions to lend it was motivated largely by the threat of many railroad receiverships and the demoralization of the country's entire railroad system. There were railroads as well as banks and insurance companies to save.

In spite of loans aggregating $359,000,000 five railroads went into receivership, but all roads were able to continue operation with a high degree of efficiency so any disruption of this necessary service was averted.

Having come more or less safely through a bad year with the help of these loans, the railroads are now starting another year, which has begun badly, and for the probable deficiencies of which many will be unable to borrow because of exhausted collateral. What are they to do?

Bankruptcy or receivership faces numerous railroads, unless freight loadings pick up sharply early in the current year. So certain of this is the government that it is already contemplating revisions in the laws which will eliminate much of the financial loss which accompanies such reorganizations.

In any event the railroads will continue operating but only a business revival or government subsidies can save the owners of their securities considerable loss.

CHAPTER ONE

Major Sands, conscious of his high deserts, was disposed to receive with condensation the gifts which he perceived that Fortune offered him. He could not bribe him with them into a regard for her discernment. He had seen her shower favours upon the worthless and defraud the meritorious of their just reward. And she had kept him waiting. If at last she turned to him, he supposed that it was less from any gracious sense of justice in herself than because Major Sands had known how to constrain her.

This, from all the evidence I have sifted, I take to have been the complexion of his thoughts as he lounged beside the day-bed set for Miss Priscilla Harradine under the awning of brown sailcloth which had been improvised on the high poop of the Centaur.

The trim yellow ship lay at anchor in the spacious bay of Port Royal, which she had made her first port of call after the short run from Barbados. They were taking fresh water aboard, and this was providing an occasion to induce them to take other things. In the forechains the Negro steward and the cook were receiving a bombardment of mangled English and smooth French from a cluster of vegetables, laden with fruit and potatoes, that bumped and scraped alongside, manned by whites, half-castes, Negroes and Caribs, all of them vociferous in their eagerness to sell.

At the head of the entrance ladder stood Captain Bransome in a stiff, skirted coat of dark blue with tarnished gold lace, refusing admission to the gabardined and persistent Jew in the cockpit at the foot of it, who was offering him bargains in cocoa, ginger, and spices.

Inshore, across the pellucid jade-green waters of the bay, gently ruffled by the north-easterly breeze that was sweetly tempering the torrid heat of the sun, rose the shimmering mass of the ship, the ramage riding there at anchor. Beyond this little town of Port Royal showed sharply white against the emerald green undulating slopes of Martinique, the volcanic mass of Mont Pelé which thrust its rugged summit into the cobalt sky.

Captain Bransome, his glance alternating between the Jew who would not be dismissed, and a longboat that half a mile away was heading for the ship, removed his round black castor. Under this his head was swathed in a blue cotton handkerchief, as being cooler than a periwig. He stood mopping his brow whilst he waited. He was feeling the heat in the ponderous European finery which, out of regard for the dignity of his office of master, he donned whenever putting into port.

On the poop above, despite the breeze and the shadow of the awning, Major Sands, too, was feeling the heat, inclining as he did to a rather fleshy habit of body, and this despite a protracted sojourn in the Tropics of Cancer. He had come out five years ago whilst King Charles II was still alive. He had volunteered for service overseas in the conviction that in the New World he would find that fortune which eluded him in the Old. The necessity was imposed upon him by a dissolute father who had gambled and drunk the broad family estates in Wiltshire. Major Sands's inheritance, therefore, had been scanty. At least, it did not include—and for this he daily returned thanks to his Maker—the wasteful, improvident proclivities of his sire. The Major was no man for hazards. In contrast with his profligate father, he was of that cold and calculating temperament which, when allied with intelligence, will carry a man far. In Major Sands the intelligence was absent; but like most men in his case he was not aware of it. If he had not realized his hopes strictly in accordance with the expectations that had sent him overseas, he perceived that he was about to realize them very fully, nevertheless. And however unforeseen the circumstances to which the fact was due, this now troubled his perception that the achievement proceeded from his own merit and address. Hence his disdainful attitude towards Fortune. The issue, after all, was a simple one. He had come out to the West Indies in quest of fortune. And in the West Indies he had found it. He had achieved what he came to achieve. Could chance and effect be linked more closely?

This fortune, the winning of which awaited now his pleasure, reclined on a day-bed and was extremely good to look upon.

This fortune which he had won, or the winning of which awaited now his pleasure, reclined on a day-bed of cane and carved oak, and was extremely good to look upon. Slim and straight, clean-limbed and moderately tall, Priscilla Harradine displayed an outward grace of body that was but the reflection of an inner grace of mind. The young face under the shadow of the wide-brimmed hat was of a winning loveliness; it was of that delicate tint that went with the deep golden of her hair, and it offered little evidence of long years spent in the blistering climate of Antigua. If there was spirit in her, resolute little chin and firmly modelled lips, there was also tenderness and candour in the eyes, wide-set and intelligent and of a colour that was something between the deep blue of the sky and the jade-green of the sea on which they gazed. She wore a high-waisted gown of ivory-coloured silk, and the scalloped edges of her bodice were finely laced with gold. Languidly she waved a fan, fashioned from the vivid green and scarlet of parrots' feathers, in the heart of which a little oval mirror had been set.

Her father, Sir John Harradine, had been actuated by motives similar to those of Major Sands in exiling himself from England to a remote colonial settlement. His fortunes, too, had been at a low ebb; and as much for the sake of his only and motherless child as for his own, he had accepted the position of Captain-General of the Leeward Islands, the offer of which a friend at court had procured for him. Great opportunities of fortune came the way of an alert colonial governor. Sir John had known how to seize them and, when at last he died—prematurely cut off by a tropical fever—he was in a position to make amends to his daughter for the years of exile she had shared with him, by leaving her mistress of a very substantial fortune and of a very fair estate in his native Kent which a trust-worthy agent in England had acquired for him.

It had been Sir John's wish that she should go home at once to this, and to his sister who would guide her. On his deathbed he protested that too much of her youth already had she wasted in the West Indies through his selfishness. For this he begged her pardon, and so died.

They had been constant companions and good friends, she and her father. She missed him sorely, and might have missed him more, might have been detected by his death into a deeper sense of loneliness, but for the ready friendship, attention, and service of Major Sands.

The system in this country, when it was announced that there is a bill now before the Legislature in Harrisburg asking for sanction of an agricultural credit association in Pennsylvania.

Pennsylvania, it was pointed out, is one of the only two states where chattel mortgages are not honored.

"The banks are unwilling to take chances today," the Ithaca editor declared. "In many cases the banks cannot afford to take chances although a short time ago they wanted the farmers to borrow money. At the present time the banks demand a security that the ordinary man cannot afford, because of reduced incomes, and we cannot criticize the banks for that. But the difficulty is that we have given the Federal Reserve system the right to do a number of things that should not be done as they are being done at the present time."

"The general level of farm prices, from the latest quotations is 44 cents compared with $1.00 in 1926."

"I would advocate a unit of exchange, a dollar that will buy as much at one time as another. I am not advocating cheap money, not for a minute. Farmers as a class, are the best financiers in the world, for they have learned to live within their income."

"If we are going to keep our same monetary system, with prices going down, you will not borrow money, unless you do it on a gamble. I believe that the dollar can be made so staple that the variation will be so small that we will not notice it. We want to raise the price level back to what it was in 1936 at $1.00 instead of 44 cents today, and from that $1.00 point, readjust and keep it at the most satisfactory and fair level for all time.

"One suggestion has been made that when the price level goes down it would be well to take a little gold out of the dollar. Another suggestion to which I find no fault, is to issue paper money just as we do now and have each piece marked, 'Redeemable In Gold,' but not stating the amount. This paper would then be redeemed at the price of gold on the day of presentation of the paper for payment."

"But all these suggestions would not remedy what we are striving for as farmers! Are we in America so dumb that we cannot adjust this economic condition ourselves. What do we do in science? We simply experiment until we have proven a certain fact, let us do the same thing and as farmers, work out our own problems."

"I certainly believe there are enough brains in the United States to work out a scientific unit of exchange."

Continuing his discussion on co-operatives at the afternoon session, Mr. Babcock made the statement that in his opinion co-operatives are for the better or more able class of farmers. He declared that he did not believe in a union of all farmers because in that case, an individual who might want to increase his efficiency, might fall below his ability as a result of association with the entire mass.

Mr. Babcock's associate on the program, the Ithaca editor, declared that he entirely disagreed with Mr. Babcock in so far as his contention was that co-operatives are for the better class of farmers. "That is not the case," Mr. Dillon declared. "I hope the time will never come anywhere, when only the better class or more able class of farmers go into a cooperative. They should include the poor and the good farmer alike."

"Cooperatives are fine in some instances, but in a lot of instances the cooperative defeats its own purpose. I do not believe it is possible to establish a cooperative and capture the market on one or two products, for you will soon find your problem unsolved. There will soon be another group underselling you and you will have to meet competition if you try to 'capture' the market."

George Olds, president of the Emergency Exchange Association, New York City, attended yesterday's meeting. In an effort, he explained, to ascertain the feeling of the farmers in Bucks county toward furnishing food for the unemployed of the large cities, or any other section.

In her remarks, Mrs. Perkins extended thanks on behalf of the committee for co-operation of the instructors, students and community at large in the successful manner in which the evening's program was presented, to the great benefit of welfare work in the section.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in
the Morning 'Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks pink, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The reason for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour out two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas builds up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is foul, skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes these good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and up." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to making the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Beware of substitutes. 25c at all stores. © 1931 C. M. Co.

Washington Letter

By William S. Neal

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—(INS)—The unwritten law of Congress that seniority leads to preferment is about to be tested in the contest for Speaker of the next House.

The Speaker, of course, will be a Democrat because of the party's victory at the polls in November although the Republicans will present an opposition candidate. The Democrats will select the Speaker at a party caucus about March 4.

Rep. Henry T. Rainey of Illinois, veteran of 28 years service, believes that he is entitled to the Speakership as a promotion from his post as Majority leader.

But accession by seniority is contested by Rep. Joseph W. Byrns of Tennessee, who has been in the House 24 years, and Rep. John McHugh of Alabama, with 14 years' service.

Chairmen of the important committees almost invariably rise to their posts as their seniors are defeated or die. But the rule is not always followed in the selection of a Speaker. Under the seniority rule, Rainey would be the logical candidate.

The seniority rule just now is being criticized freely by students of Congress. It may place at the head of a powerful committee a man with no qualifications for the post.

The seniority rule was broken in a notable instance when the House Appropriations Committee was reorganized after the budget system was adopted. The late Rep. Martin Madin, of Illinois, was made chairman though others were senior to him. He was chosen because of his ability.

During the last session the Democrats shuffled their committee chairmanships slightly to make room for northern members. Southerners, by virtue of seniority, became chairman of most committees.

One Southern member was forced to abandon his right to be chairman of one rather unimportant committee. He was defeated in the primary.

Information has reached Washington that his "demotion" was used against him by his opponents. If the House won't promote the man, why should he be kept in Congress? It is a powerful argument, and is primarily the argument that causes the seniority rule to be retained. If a man is rejected for a post, his constituents will reject him.

When the Republicans last year chose Rep. Snell of New York as their candidate for Speaker, Mr. Snell, of Connecticut, who had been majority leader, the latter resigned.

There is strong opposition among the Democrats to at least two members who may become committee chairmen as a result of the Speaker's fight.

They are attacked as unfit to head two of the greatest committees of the House. The desire to prevent these men from obtaining posts may have an important bearing on the outcome of the Speakership contest.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J.—(INS)—Liberal Arts colleges are faced with a new and revolutionary task—teaching youth to enjoy the increased leisure which will be his in the social life of the future.

That was the message of Irving Maurer, president of Beloit College, Wisconsin, to the Association of American Colleges at the annual banquet here.

"Technological unemployment is a real fact," he asserted.

"This challenges liberal arts colleges with the task of making persons able to enjoy the inner riches, of encouraging their imaginations and of disciplining their minds."

PHILADELPHIA—(INS)—More than one-third of the tenants occupying properties in eight industrial districts included in a rent survey are in arrears for an average of four months, according to the Philadelphia Housing Association.

has been frigid temperatures recorded several times during the present winter season, but the coldest of the period is yet to come.

Such is the prediction of Paul K. Schimmack, local "astrologer" and weatherman, whose prophecies are read in the stars.

February March, and April all will bring heavy storms of snow, rain and sleet, according to the forecast. There will be floods the first week of March and the first week of April.

The periods between March 4 and 11 or April 1 and 8 will be the coldest, Schimmack says.

Chesterfields are Milder

WHEN you ask a Chesterfield smoker why that's his brand—he generally comes right out flat-footed and says... "It's because They're Milder!"

So we're going to keep on doing everything we know how to keep them that way.

That's why we look for and buy the mildest and ripest tobaccos we can get. That's why we age them in our warehouses till they're mellow and sweet.

We believe that even the shredding of the tobacco... and the quality of the paper it's rolled in, have a lot to do with the even-drawing, mild smoke that people enjoy in Chesterfields.

You can bank on this... every method known to science is used to make Chesterfield a milder, better-tasting cigarette that satisfies.

GAY COLORS MARK SKATING COSTUMES FOR THIS WINTER

Well-Fitted, One-Piece Frock is Added To by a Muff

By Alice Langelier (I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

PARIS—Skating costumes are sleek and chic on smart Parisiennes seen winter sporting at Paris' three ice palaces. For whatever she does, the French woman generally finds the way to be dressed for the occasion in the very best manner possible.

The simple, well-fitting one-piece frock, with a skirt sufficiently ample for nice long strides, is preferred by many of them this winter. Vionnet shows a dark blue corduroy velvet, brightened by a red cravat, and Marcel Rochas has one in beige-red with an unusual effect of buttons describing most fantastic motifs.

Strikingly chic is a skating costume of black handwoven wool for the skirt and the blouse striped in red, black and yellow. The bottom of the skirt and the belt are bordered with striped fringe.

Another black wool frock is trimmed with white pique collar and cuffs and a black pelinee has a warm little corsage of shaved white lamb.

Scotch plaid in black and white is very smart on the ice, trimmed with black astrakhan, as well as the beret and gloves. A frock of brick-red cingalya has two rows of buttons from shoulder to hem.

The little muff is a favorite of skaters.

THREE GOOD BASKETBALL TILTS BOOKED TONIGHT

(By T. M. Juno)

Three good games are booked for tonight in the Italian Mutual Aid Hall. In the opener, the Emilie Girls will meet the Edgewood Girls and in the Bristol Basketball League schedule the Hibernians and Aces meet in the first game and in the second the Odd Fellows will battle the Knights of Columbus.

The Emilie Girls gave an exhibition fray to the Bristol fans three weeks ago, beating Morrisville, 17-16 in a game which was undecided until the final minute of play. The Emilie club will use the same lineup that played against the Morrisville team.

The St. Ann's-Hibernians game will prove interesting as both of these teams are anxious to remain in the running for the second-half crown. A defeat to either club will mean that their second-half hopes are practically broken.

The Casesys in their fray with the Odd Fellows will be after their first win of the season which will be necessary if that club intends to remain out of the cellar. If the "Oddies" put it over the Knights it will mean that that club will finish in the cellar.

Because of the three-game schedule, the first game will begin promptly at 7.30 p. m.

SPORT SHOTS by Maxwell Gordon

BRISTOL sport fans are usually a loyal crowd, they will root for their favorites when they are winning and plead with them when their team is losing. . . and how they "raze" the opposition for a fare-thee-well when the opportunity presents itself!

Which brings us back a number of years ago when the Bristol A. A. football team was playing in the Bux-Mont League and was scheduled to meet the Yardley eleven. . . a combination of former college players.

On this particular day Coach Frank Black, who had drilled the Bristol lads in a number of new plays during the previous week, felt anything but confident of the outcome of the game. Black, who had played with the Yardley team the year before, knew that something unusual had to happen to give his boys a victory.

Shortly after the kick-off, the up-county squad scored a touchdown with comparative ease. . . and did the fans howl! . . . They pleaded with the home boys to get going and "razed" the Yardley crowd plenty. . . while Coach Black sat on the bench in despair.

He had hoped that he could go back to Trenton where most of the visitors lived and boost of Bristol's victory. . . but he saw his hopes go smash in a few minutes. Everything pointed to defeat for the homeboys. . . when suddenly Frank Cook, a diminutive Bristol back, dashed down the field and grabbed a lateral pass intended for a Yardley player and raced for a touchdown.

Bodlam broke loose among the local fans. . . they danced around the sidelines, hugging one another in wild glee, while the Blue and Gold boys put over the extra point which tied the score.

We have never seen such a change in a crowd. . . Coach Black, who a minute before was in the doldrums, jumped up and danced around like a man bestirred. . . and in the excitement jammed his foot in the water bucket.

The local sound became a changed team from then. So surprised were the visitors at the unexpected touchdown that they were swept off their feet. . . Jay S. Fine, who was playing fullback, got the ball on the kick-off and crashed his way after a few plays over for a second score. . . and so on, all afternoon, with each Bristol player inspired, the game turned into a complete rout for the visitors.

All their chesty confidence gone the game ended with Bristol winning by the score of 26-6. . . and Coach Black took about his Bristol team when he got back to Trenton that night!

ROAD TOWARD PENNANT IS ROUGH FOR "CUBS"

(This is the second of a series of 16 articles by Pat Robinson analyzing the major league baseball clubs and outlining their prospects for the coming season.)

(By Pat Robinson)

(N. Y. Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, Feb. 2.—(INS)—The rocky road to Dublin is a smooth boulevard compared with the road the Chicago Cubs will have to travel to a pennant this year.

On pre-season play the Cubs can expect improvement in only two quarters: the return of former of Burleigh Grimes who is sure to be better than he was last year when handicapped by an unruly appendix, and the acquiring of a great left-handed hitter in Babe Herman.

The Cuban infield is the best in the League. Grimm, Bill Hermann, Koenig or Jurgas at short and Woody English at third, make a great combination.

Old Hoss Stephenson is still the most dependable hitter in a pinch in the League and while he is slowing down, he has the brilliant and temperamental Kiki Cuyler to help him out from his place in center.

Gabby Hartnett is still a good catcher and a nice hander of pitchers. The Cubs need a left hand pitcher. Berry Richmond, the southpaw lately acquired from Baltimore, might fill the bill but a youngster coming up always carries a big question mark with him.

Charley Root is not the pitcher he was, and if he wins twelve games he'll be doing well.

Warneck, Bush and Malone are okay and a young Tinning may take his place as a winner beside them. The pitching staff is good enough to win, especially with that fine infield to back it up.

but a first string southpaw would add at least 25 per cent to its strength.

Grimm's popularity with his players is a decided asset and if Charley himself feels the need of a rest he can always park the newly acquired Harvey Hendrick at first base.

The Cubs may repeat, in any event they figure to be there or thereabouts, but they will find the going rough, especially with the Pirates, Phillies, Cards and Dodgers tossing brick bats in their path.

Bush Seeks Hale As A Third Base Bulwark

CINCINNATI, O., Feb. 2.—(INS)—Third base on the Cincinnati Reds has not been adequately protected since the days of Adele Greh and his turny hot-bat, and Donnie Bush, the new half-pint manager of the Reds, is determined to correct that weakness promptly.

After conducting an inventory of his team, Bush believes a good, steady third baseman could do more to yank his club out of the depths of the National League than anybody else—always excepting someone with the batting prowess of Babe Ruth or Lou Gehrig.

Bush admits having his eye on Odelo, a sensation last year with Toledo in the American association, and now the property of the Cleveland Indians. He is a rookie, aged 24.

Cleveland might give up Hale, thinks Bush, because Manager Roger Peckinpaugh already has two other good third sackers: Willie Kamm, the great star of the Pacific Coast some seasons ago, and Detore, obtained from Buffalo in the International league.

Bush believes Hale is ready to go. When the spring training season opens, Otto Bluege probably will be at third, unless Hale is signed. Built compactly and short, like the once-great Groh, Bluege looks to be a good fielder but has not shown how he will do against fast pitching. Young Hale, on the other hand, clubbed out a .333 average last year and led the league in three-baggers, with 22.

For it was the opening day of the trial of that smiling soldier of fortune, William James "Curley" Guy, charged with slaying Captain Walter Wanderwell, world traveler, on ship-board shortly before he was to leave on a cruise for the South Seas.

And the Carma, whose creaking decks and whispering sails could tell the secret of the murder and the murderer if they only would, was to play a central part in the drama of the trial.

Business of selecting a jury to decide the fate of the handsome young defendant was expected to take up a greater part of the first day of the trial.

The Middleweight Maulers

By BURNLEY

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc., Great Britain rights reserved. 2-1

WHO is the world's middleweight champion? If you are in New York State or environs, the answer is Ben Jeby. If you are in territories under the jurisdiction of the National Boxing Association, they will tell you that Marcel Thil of France is the 160-pound King. Jeby is a Jewish lad from New York's East Side. The New York Boxing Commission recognizes him as middleweight titleholder because he came out on top in a so-called elimination tourney sponsored by that august body. How anybody can become middleweight champion by licking Chick Devlin and Frankie Battaglia is a mystery which I will leave for you to puzzle out. The only other guy that participated in this joke tournament was Paul Pirone of Cleveland, who is strictly a second rater.

Jebby started off in the tournament by kayoing Pirone, and then went out to beat Chick Devlin, only a fair fighter at best, in a 15-round encounter. Bennah then encountered Frankie Battaglia, an inexperienced youngster with a terrific right hand wallop, in the final bout of the tourney, and Battaglia was stopped in the twelfth round after absorbing a bad licking from the New York Hebrew.

So what? The New York moguls say that Jebby has won the right to be called middleweight champion! Thus are champions made—in New York state.

And what about Marcel Thil? Marcel is a bald-headed Frenchman with an aggressive chin and a pip of a cauliflower ear, and he comes by his title claims as a result of defeating Gorilla Jones on a foul some time ago. The Gorilla was recognized as middleweight champ by the N. B. A., after he had triumphed in another trick elimination tournament which was nearly as bad as the subsequent one held in New York. Thil may come over to this country next summer for a bout with Jebby.

Meanwhile, even if you leave Thil out of consideration, there are several other middleweights who have good reason to dispute the title claims of the Heebie Jebby Kid.

Vince Dundee has already licked New York's middleweight champion twice, and the Newark Italian thinks he can do it again.

Dave Shade, famous middleweight veteran, gave Jebby a couple of fifty pastings, and the odds are that he can pin Benjamin's ears back any time they clash.

Then there is a dark gentleman by the name of Sammy Slaughter, who is said to be just as ferocious as he sounds and who has flattened a lot of pretty good fighters. Sammy would like nothing better than a shot at Mr. Jebby. But Hymie Caplin, who manages Benjamin, lost no time in drawing the "color line" right after his charge had won the trick title, so it looks as if Slaughter will be left out in the cold as far as Jebby is concerned.

However, don't think I am berating Jebby's fists. Ben is a tough kid with a world of endurance and a pretty good punch. He isn't a classy performer inside the ropes, but his constant aggressiveness and amazing energy make him a very hard fellow to beat. Dundee, Thil and Shade are veterans who will certainly get no better with the passing years, while Jebby is a youngster who is improving with every start.

Even though Bennah's title claim is at present highly disputable, it is very likely that he will eventually establish himself as the real middleweight champion—unless, perchance, the shadow of Sammy Slaughter assumes even more threatening proportions in the future.

Fuel that rings the bell!

THE health and comfort of your family are too important to tamper with! Dollars are too scarce these days to throw away! It's the better part of wisdom, then, to buy and burn a fuel that gives satisfaction from every standpoint! Try Koppers Rainey-Wood Coke — once. We believe you'll use it continually after that. This is a fuel that gives H-E-A-T — that banks and regulates easily — that leaves few ashes — that is light and clean — that costs less! Even on coldest winter days, your house will be snug and warm, and your pocketbook will sigh with relief. A certified seal is attached to each delivery order. It is there for your protection. Accept no coke without seeing that seal. Rainey-Wood Coke Co., Conshohocken, Pennsylvania.
